Download Hindi movies, Download Movie Download Full Hindi Movies free, Free Mp3 Download Free Hindi movie, Free download The first time I heard of Akira was in the late 80's, when my old college buddy first brought it home. We were all sitting around watching it, thinking 'WTF are we doing here watching this'. Then, the director made a good movie. Man, that was a good movie. Mind you, the film was nowhere close to the awesomeness of the original, but still, that was a good movie. Enter the Matrix This was the first film that had me in Matrix/cyberpunk mode, watching it over and over and over again. For some reason, the film hit a lot of core elements of what I wanted from a cyberpunk film. The cyberpunk world with its own specific way of doing things, with its own way of thinking, that I wanted to experience through a film. How can something make you fall back in love with this genre? The film made its way into my heart through its visuals, through its dialogue, through its music, and through its action sequences. I can't tell you how many times I was hit by bullets in this film. I was surprised every time I saw a good looking character fall down and die at the end. I couldn't help but laugh, for some reason. This was for me, a real moment, a real living breathing moment, inside me. But a film is like a well that is only deepened through retelling and retelling. I started to wonder why was I wasting my time watching any other movie. The Matrix got me hooked. It was original. It was new. It was so different from anything I had seen before. It was different in a good way. I had finally found a movie that I would watch over and over and over again. Then, the Matrix sequels came out. Like a disgusting zombie, the Matrix sequels attacked me. The films were way too similar to
