Nonsurgical Management of Acne with Topical Anti-inflammatory and Nutrient-Rich Treatments.

Objective To explore the use of topical treatments containing vitamin B3, vitamin B6, zinc, and selenium along with the use of herbal medicines to treat acne.

Setting Two hundred and thirty-five patients with acne.

Materials and Methods This study was conducted between March and May 2013, at the outpatient clinic of the Dermatology Department, College of Medicine, King Saud University in Riyadh. Patients with acne, who were seen for the first time and also who had not yet received any topical treatment during their current acne condition, were selected. Patients received skin-lightening formulations, containing vitamin B3, vitamin B6, zinc, and selenium, and also herbal medicinal creams, containing arnica montana, Saint John's wort, chamomilla recutita, and lemon balm. Duration of treatment was 2 months. Patients were evaluated at baseline, and at 2 weeks, and at the end of treatment. Results were evaluated according to the severity of disease, using the inflammatory and noninflammatory lesion counts, Pimple Assessment Scale (PAS) score, and patients' self-ratings. There was a significant decrease in PAS score and in the number of inflammatory and noninflammatory lesions after 2 months of treatment, regardless of the type of treatment. In addition, patients reported marked improvement in
